2KM OUTER STUDY AREA – STAGE 1 SETTING ASSESSMENT

REF	NAME	DESCRIPTION	E	N	STATUS	ZTV	SIGNIFICANCE	SETTING
SM3887	Duntanachan, cairn SW of	Prehistoric ritual and funerary: cairn (type uncertain)	196684	728228	SM	X	No visibility	Noted by HES in Scoping. Visited for Stage 1 Setting Assessment. Situated within farm enclosure on low lying ground in River Lonan valley. Not a prominent hilltop cairn visible over long distances. No visibility from monument itself. No viewpoint within ZTV looking towards cairn within 140m, beyond which cairn cannot be experienced. Local prominence unaffected. No effect predicted upon asset significance.
SM3930	Barguillean Farm, dun 250m SSW of	Prehistoric domestic and defensive: dun. On an isolated knoll, 250 metres SSW of Barguillean farmhouse, there are the last vestiges of a dun which has been enclosed on three sides by an outer wall or bank. On the north side, the slope of the knoll is so steep that it was evidently considered unnecessary to construct additional defences. The dun is oval on plan and has measured about 12.8 by 10.0 metres internally, but all that remains of the wall is a thin band of rubble core, interrupted by an entrance at the east end. The outer work, now reduced to a mere scarp lies 1.5 metres below the dun. Its entrance is also on the east side, roughly in line with that of the dun.	197960	728570	SM	Within ZTV	Wider landscape contributes to significance. Impact possible in principle	Noted by HES in Scoping. Detailed assessment required. Visited for Stage 1 Setting Assessment. Its situation is prominent, located at an elevated position at the east end of Glen Lonan, overlooking surrounding agricultural land, particularly to the east and north. Striking views were noted to the east towards Loch Etive and Ben Cruachan Hills.

2-5KM OUTER STUDY AREA – STAGE 1 SETTING ASSESSMENT

REF	NAME	DESCRIPTION	E	N	STATUS	ZTV	SIGNIFICANCE	SETTING
SM2699	Cladh na h'Annaid, burial ground 280m SE of Corachie Farm	Ecclesiastical: burial ground, cemetery, graveyard	200107	729157	SM	Within ZTV	No effect predicted upon asset significance.
SM3866	Duntanachan,dun 515m W of	Prehistoric domestic and defensive: dun	196175	728205	SM	X	No effect predicted upon asset significance.	Noted by HES in Scoping. 2.05km to nearest proposed turbine. Visited for Stage 1 Setting Assessment: The dun, covered in bracken, is positioned on a high vantage point with good views to the lower ground to the west – pasture land with intervisibility with other assumed contemporary duns located along the valley to west, and possibly to the east if there was no woodland. Hills to the north enclose the glen. Open views to Ben Cruachan to the east noted. Wooded to the south and east. No effect predicted upon asset significance.
SM3872	Clachadow,cairn 320m N of	Prehistoric ritual and funerary: cairn (type uncertain)	194731	727629	SM	Within ZTV	Wider landscape contributes to asset significance. Impact possible in principle	Noted by HES in Scoping. 2.6km to nearest proposed turbine. Visited for Stage 1 Setting Assessment. Oval, measuring 5.3 by 4.3 metres and has a kerb of large boulders. The height of the cairn is only 0.4 metres. Situated in the valley base, with intervisibility towards another contemporary monuments. No effect predicted upon asset significance.
SM3891	Clachadow,cairn 960m NW of	Prehistoric ritual and funerary: cairn (type uncertain)	193936	728057	SM	Within ZTV	Wider landscape contributes to asset significance. Impact possible in principle	Noted by HES in Scoping. Detailed assessment required. 3.5km to nearest proposed turbine. Visited for Stage 1 Setting Assessment:
SM3910	An Dun,dun 500m ESE of Glenamadrie	Prehistoric domestic and defensive: dun. This dun is situated on the top of an isolated knoll. The plan, size and construction suggest this is a fort rather than a dun.	192865	728363	SM	Within ZTV	Wider landscape contributes to asset significance. Impact possible in principle	Noted by HES in Scoping. Detailed assessment required. 4.6km to nearest proposed turbine. Visited for Stage 1 Setting Assessment. The monument named a dun, but interpreted as a possible fort is situated at an elevated position with views to E and W along the valley. As such it is intervisible with the other duns, cairns and standing stones also located in this valley.
SM4002	Clachadow,dun 500m NW of	Prehistoric domestic and defensive: dun. The fragmentary remains of an oval dun occupy the summit of a knoll which projects from the lower south slopes of Dea dg h Choimhead. The dun measures 11.6 metres from east to west by 8.5 metres transversely within a heavily robbed stone wall which is now reduced to a ragged stony bank 3 metres in average thickness and not more than 0.3 metres in height. Scattered across the steep slope beneath the dun on the west are a number of massive stone blocks, doubtless from the outer face of the wall on that side. The position of the entrance is not now apparent but access would have been easiest across a fairly broad col on the north.	194410	727708	SM	Within ZTV	Wider landscape contributes to asset significance. Impact possible in principle	Noted by HES in Scoping. 3.0km from nearest proposed turbine. Visited for Stage 1 Setting Assessment. Defended homestead located on a SE-facing spur, identified during site visit as not prominent due to it blending in with the backdrop of hills to north as viewed from the glen floor. Possible intentional views with other contemporary duns to west now obscured by plantation. The dun was likely positioned to overlook the fertile valley floor and which was likely exploited or farmed by its inhabitants. These views contribute to the significance of the dun. Wireline indicates blade tips of one turbine would be visible over the horizon of distant hills. No effect predicted upon asset significance.

SM4120	Caisteal Suidhe Cheannaidh, dun 470m NW of Achnacraobh	Prehistoric domestic and defensive: dun. On the highest part of the east end of a rocky ridge, are the remains of one of the best preserved duns in Lorn. It is protected by steep slopes on all sides except the west where there is a gentle approach along the crest of the ridge. The dun is almost circular on plan, measuring 11.9 by 13.1 metres within a wall up to 4.9 metres thick. The outer face, which consists of large stones survives to a maximum height of over 2 metres on the west whilst the inner face still stands to an average height of 2 metres in about nine courses, but the base of the wall on both sides is now largely obscured by fallen debris. It is recorded that, before being used as a quarry for field walls, it stood 6 metres high.	202954	724232	SM	Within ZTV	Wider landscape contributes to asset significance. Impact possible in principle	Noted by HES in Scoping. Detailed assessment required. 4.6km from nearest proposed turbine. Visited for Stage 1 Setting Assessment: Site has commanding views in all directions. In views towards the dun, it appears prominently from all sides, dominating its surroundings.
SM4121	Glenamachrie, cairns 850m ESE of	Prehistoric ritual and funerary: cairn (type uncertain)	193205	728308	SM	Within ZTV	Wider landscape contributes to asset significance. Impact possible in principle	Noted by HES in Scoping. 4.3km to nearest proposed turbine. Visited for Stage 1 Setting Assessment. The monument comprises a series of small mounds situated in a low lying position on the glen floor, and close to the existing road. Intervisibility with other likely contemporary monuments is noted, and these relationships are anticipated to remain unaffected by the proposed development. The cairns are understood, appreciated and experienced within the fertile valley context, with access to water; an enclosed and intimate setting, evidently densely occupied in the prehistoric period. Wireline from the monument indicates blade tips of only one turbine would be visible over the horizon of distant hills at the head of the valley. Views in this direction are not considered to contribute to an understanding or appreciation of the monument significance, and the experience of the significance would not change. No effect predicted upon asset significance.
SM4122	Cup marked stone 89m SW of Clachadubh	Prehistoric ritual and funerary: cupmarks or cup-and-ring marks and similar rock art	194692	727307	SM	X	No visibility
SM4197	Musdale, cairn 320m ESE of	Prehistoric ritual and funerary: cairn (type uncertain)	193891	722037	SM	X	Wider landscape contributes to asset significance. Impact possible in principle	Not a hilltop cairn. Outwith ZTV. Local prominence unaffected. No effect predicted upon asset significance.

5-10KM OUTER STUDY AREA – STAGE 1 SETTING ASSESSMENT

REF	NAME	DESCRIPTION	E	N	STATUS	ZTV	SIGNIFICANCE	SETTING
GDL00018	Ardanaiseig House		208652	724990	GDL	Within ZTV (partial)	Wider landscape contributes to asset significance. Impact possible in principle	Noted by HES in Scoping. The only part of the designed landscape that lies within the ZTV is in fact wooded, and as such no visibility of the proposed development is anticipated in reality, and no significant viewpoint is identified from this position. Furthermore, the wireline from this position indicates only blade tips would theoretically be visible. As a designated designed landscape, the policy woodland will not be removed in the long-term such that this would be reversed. No effect predicted upon asset significance.
GDL00019 / LB4715	Ardchattan Priory	Based on a monastic garden that probably dates back to the 13th century, the designed landscape has been improved in the 17th, 19th and 20th centuries, and makes an important contribution to the scenery of the surrounding area. The present policies are pastures and shelterbelts dating from the mid-19th-century with formal and woodland gardens associated with the house and approaches. The designed landscape is the setting for the Priory and the house and has outstanding Architectural value. There are long views to the south across Loch Etive to the Fearnoch Forest as well as stunning views along the loch to Ben Cruachan in the east and to the hills of Mull in the west. The cultivated pasture and woodlands provide variety in the surrounding upland scenery. Ardchattan House, listed category B, dates from before 1600 when it was first altered from the abbey buildings to form a house. A Victorian Wing was added in 1852 by the Glasgow architect Charles Wilson. The Scheduled Ardchattan Priory is the ruined remains of the Priory founded in 1230 and sacked in 1654. The gardens lie to the south and west side of the house and are divided into two areas: the Woodland Garden which runs along the drive, and the Garden in front of the south side of the house.	197193	735054	GDL/Cat B LB/PiC	Within ZTV	Wider landscape contributes to asset significance. Impact possible in principle	Noted by HES in Scoping. Detailed assessment required. Visited for Stage 1 Setting Assessment

GDL00007	Achnacloich	A woodland garden developed in the mid-20th century and established within an existing 19th century framework of woodland and parkland. Horticultural interest. The garden is the setting for the category B listed Achnacloich House. The garden lies on a headland overlooking Loch Etive. As the house and woodlands stand on a raised terrace above lower-lying fields, the mature trees of the woodland have prominence within the surrounding area. From within the garden there are extensive views west towards Mull and Morvern and north towards Ben Cruachan. Achnacloich House lies in the centre of the northern section with garden terraces and a large lawn. The house, terraces and lawn together form the central heart of the garden. The woodland garden is laid out on the slopes around the house with the parkland extending along the loch shore to the north and west.	195533	733924	GDL	Within ZTV (partial)	Wider landscape contributes to asset significance. Impact possible in principle	Noted by HES in Scoping. Visited for Stage 1 Setting Assessment; the house itself was not accessible. It is evident that mature woodland surrounding the house is likely to screen any visibility of the proposed development from the house to the south. The garden is set out on a headland on which a raised terrace has been formed. As such, the ZTV indicates theoretical visibility only from these elevated positions- all of which are wooded, with no long distance views. As a woodland garden with predominantly horticultural interest as a designated landscape, the landscape was not laid out specifically to take advantage of long distance views to contribute to the experience; however views north towards Ben Cruachan and west to the hills of Mull are noted in the list description, which would remain unchanged. Views towards the wooded landscape from outwith the GDL, and the contribution that this makes to the character of the surrounding area, would remain unaffected by the proposed development located 7.7km away. No effect predicted upon asset significance.

Impact possible in principle	Noted by HES in Scoping. 5.0km from nearest proposed turbine. Visited for Stage 1 Setting Assessment. Standing stone situated on level ground immediately south of the public road. It measures 0.7 metres by 0.6 metres at the base and is 1.45 metres in height. Positioned in the valley base, it is not understood to have been intended to be visible over long distances. It is likely it was intended to be intervisible with other contemporary monuments located along this valley, in which the community who raised it lived and farmed. Local prominence unaffected. Group value with other nearby monuments unaffected. The standing stone is understood, appreciated and experienced within the fertile valley context, with access to water; an enclosed and intimate setting, evidently densely occupied in the prehistoric period. Wireline from the monument indicates only turbine blade tips would be fully visible, over the horizon of distant hills at the head of the valley. Views in this direction are not understood to contribute to how the cultural significance of the standing stone is experienced and appreciated. No effect predicted upon asset significance.

SM3914	Strontoiller,stone circle 280m SSW of	Prehistoric ritual and funerary: stone circle or ring. This is the only known stone circle in Lorn. The NE half of the circle stands in what is now an area of marshy ground, the remainder at the edge of an arable field. The circle measures about 20 metres in diameter and is composed of 31 rounded boulders of various sizes, the largest measuring not more than 1 metre in height. A short distance outside the circle, on the NNE, are four other stones which have	190675	729138	SM	X	No visibility	Noted by HES in Scoping. Visited for Stage 1 Setting Assessment. Whilst the stone circle is located outwith the ZTV for the proposed development, it is part of a group of monuments occupying the valley from which the proposed development would be visible. The stone circle was observed to be comprised of stones less than 1m in height, and not prominently visible over long distances. it is evident that the valley was the focus of a prehistoric community. Visibility of the proposed development (up to two turbines, and two further blade tips) would not alter an experience of an enclosed and

SM4304	Dun Iadain,fort 490m SW of Kilbride	Prehistoric domestic and defensive: fort (includes hill and promontory fort). The remains of a fort crown the summit of Dun Iadain, an isolated, round-topped hill SW of Kilbridge farmhouse. The site is a strong one, flanked on all sides by steep grass-covered slopes and commanding extensive views to east and west. The fort measures about 57.6 by 19.2 metres internally and has been defended by two boulder-faced, rubble cored walls. The inner wall has been drawn around the margin of the summit area and appears now as a grass-grown stony scarp of varying height in which no facing stones remain visible. The entrance was in the SSE. The outer wall follows, in great part, the outer edge of a level terrace 1 to 2 metres below the summit, but it has been severely mutilated, particularly on the west side where practically nothing of it remains. The entrance to the outer wall, was on the east. Outer and inner walls appear to converge at the south end of the fort where a rock fall has removed all traces of defences.	191116	724041	SM	X	No visibility	Noted by HES in Scoping. Overall the setting of the complex is largely unaltered which adds to the special interest.	201079	731789	Cat A LB	Within ZTV	No effect predicted upon asset significance.	Noted by HES in Scoping. Visited for Stage 1 Setting Assessment. Architectural and historical value unaffected. Relationship with Bonawe Ironworks, 100m away, unaffected. From the cottages themselves, in views towards the proposed development, the cottages themselves screen views. In views from the end of the cottages there are trees lining the roadside which screen views to the south west. Views to distant hills from the windows of the cottages themselves do not contribute to buildings' significance. At a distance of 6.3km to the nearest proposed turbine, this would not affect the character of the area or intimate nature of the cluster of ironworks buildings and how they functioned together. No effect predicted upon asset significance.

SM2219	Fraoch Eilean,castle	Secular (castle)	210851	725160	SM	Within ZTV	Wider landscape contributes to asset significance. Impact possible in principle	Visited for Stage 1 Assessment. A castle occupies a strong defensive position on the plateau summit of the NE eminence of Fraoch Eilean. The existing remains appear to comprise work of four main periods, of which the earliest may be ascribed to a date within the 13th century, at which time a substantial stone hall- house was erected towards the E end of the site, the remaining area of the plateau being used for the construction of ancillary buildings of turf and timber. At some later date within the medieval period this remaining western portion of the summit was enclosed by a stone curtain-wall incorporating an entrance-gateway on the S side and a round tower at the SW angle. The hall-house became derelict, but was re-occupied about the beginning of the 17th century, a small dwelling-house being constructed withing its NE corner, the remaining, roofless part of the hall- house being adapted for use as an inner courtyard. A final reconstruction took place some time in the later 17th century, when the small house was enlarged to take in the SE corner of the hall-house as well. It appears to have been abandoned some time before 1769 and the walls of the hall-house now stand to an average height of about 4.6m, the N wall, however, which is founded at a lower level than the remainder, survives to a height of some 9.0m. The buildings were long overgrown by trees and other vegetation, much of which has now been removed to permit inspection and repair of the fabric. Exploratory excavations were carried out in 1969-73 under the direction of Dr F Celoria, University of Keele. Site inspected for Stage 1 Assessment from A85 roadside at Lag na Luinge to assess views towards it from the loch shoreline with proposed development behind. It was determined that the island is clearly visible, however, it has dense tree cover and no visibility was obtained of the castle from the roadside. It is considered therefore that these views do not contribute to the castle's significance. There is no public access to the castle. Local prominence in views from the island unaffected. It is considered that the castle was/is intended to be understood, appreciated and experienced in relation to Loch Awe, a relationship which would remain unaffected. No effect predicted upon asset significance
